

Eric Dammer
Lisa Crocker
Humanities 2510
27 April 2001

Self-Evaluation – Essay 5 (Kim Buckley, Eric Dammer, Jamie Lewis)

The workload was split among us equally. I thoroughly enjoyed examining the buildings' architecture for review in the essay—I was surprised how much can be said about simple earth-resting architecture. The most interesting aspect of the assignment was linking the venue to its history and that of its immediate environment, both in the past and present.

In the course as a whole, I think I was able to apply experience out of class and an enjoyment of my own writing technique so that the course was fun and informative. I trust that my work can “speak for itself.”